DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species:

Species 1: Figs. 1-7;

Species 2: Figs. 8-11;

Species 3: Figs 12-13B;

Species 4: Figs. 14-15.

2. The species are independent or distinct because claims to the different species recite the mutually exclusive characteristics of such species. In addition, these species are not obvious variants of each other based on the current record.

Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, claims 1 and 17 are identified as generic to only Species 1, 2, and 4.

Species 2 is different from Species 1 in that Species 2 adds a Wavelet transforming unit serving as transforming means and excludes the luminance DCT unit, the down-sampling unit, and the color difference DCT unit. The Wavelet transforming unit processes the output from the Y/C separating unit, and outputs the processing result to the zero-order extracting unit and the high-frequency extracting unit. Species 3 is related to a replay unit different from Species 1, 2 and 3, where an image pickup device is disclosed. Species 4 is different form Species 1 and 2 in that the image pickup system in Species 4 is structured by deleting, from the structure according to Species 1, the block extracting unit, the zero-order quantizing unit, the noise estimating unit, the noise reducing unit, the high-frequency quantizing unit, and the compressing unit. Further, the image pickup system according to the Species 4 including a correcting image having three types or more of gray charts with different reflectances ranging white to black; a chart extracting unit , serving as chart separating means and block extracting means, for extracting the chart from the video signal stored in the second buffer and for outputting the extracted gray chart to the Y/C separating unit; a variance calculating unit , serving as variance calculating means, for calculating the variance of the high-frequency component extracted from the high-frequency extracting unit; and a fitting unit, serving as fitting means, for fitting the output of the zero-order extracting unit by using the variance calculated by the variance calculating unit and for transferring the fitted outputted to the output unit.

There is an examination and search burden for these patentably distinct species due to their mutually exclusive characteristics. The species require a different field of search (e.g., searching different classes/subclasses or electronic resources, or employing different search queries); and/or the prior art applicable to one species would not likely be applicable to another species; and/or the species are likely to raise different non-prior art issues under 35 U.S.C. 101 and/or 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species to be examined even though the requirement may be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

The election of the species may be made with or without traverse. To preserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the election of species requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse. Traversal must be presented at the time of election in order to be considered timely. Failure to timely traverse the requirement will result in the loss of right to petition under 37 CFR 1.144. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which of these claims are readable on the elected species.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the species unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other species.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which depend from or otherwise require all the limitations of an allowable generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141.
